

Australian journalism is the poorer today after the death of long time News Ltd journalist, Frank Devine. Frank was a natural conservative and a strong advocate of the Catholic faith but he wrote quite a few sensible and witty columns about the sex industry. In discussions with the Eros Association he was always the devil's advocate on the surface but underneath his conservative exterior - pragmatism, public health and his own natural ease with sexuality made him a reluctant ally.

Fiona