

MASTER(S) CHEF-Pleasure or Politics?

Written by Robert Bishop
Saturday, 24 July 2010 22:35

The Australian public has won a democratic victory over the political and media machine by forcing the leaders debate to be televised 1 hour earlier due to the popularity of the Masterchef final.

As Julia Gillard said without any sense of irony on the ABC 7.30 Report, 21 July:

“Australia is a great country you get to watch what you want on TV....”

Fiona Patten commented:

“Your hypocrisy is duly noted Julia. Your party is the censorship party. Only the ASP has the “recipe” for a straightforward classification system across film, TV and internet.”